Soon, all govt hospitals to automatically enrol newborns for Aadhaar

UNIQUE IDENTITY Hospitals and community centres will be provided with a tablet and their staff trained to carry out the enrolment

Moushumi Das Gupta

NEW DELHI: Government hospitals and health centres across India will soon start enrolling children for Aadhaar – the 12-digit unique identity number - on their premises right after birth. Hospitals, community and primary health centres will be provided with a tablet and their staff trained to carry out the enrolment. For generating the unique number, the hospital will get the child's photograph and biometric detail of one of the parents.

"Ēnrolling children imme diately after birth will ensure better delivery of entitlements and services under Integrated Child Development Scheme and various government-run programmes. Not only will it elp track the nutritional status of the child from birth but also monitor if community workers are delivering services at their respective centre," ABP Pandey, Unique Identification Authority of India's (UIDAI) director general, said.

Aadhaar can also be used to track attendance of children For generating the number, the hospital will get the child's
